What Should a Coin Show Be?

Coin Shows are many things to many people, and people attend coin shows for many different reasons, and any reason a collector has for attending a coin show is good enough. Many collectors think of a coin show only as an opportunity to buy and/or sell coins. Seeking and finding collectable coins is the heart of our hobby to most collectors. But the numismatic hobby is more than buying and selling coins, just like the human body is more than just the heart. Because your GSNA belongs to a variety of members and collectors, it is important to think about what a coin show should be, in order to represent and serve the entire body of the numismatic hobby. This is important because our July GSNA Convention will be what we want it to be. If we want our convention to be another one of several giant commercial events where dealers and collectors can gather for a bourse floor feeding frenzy, then that is exactly what our Convention will be.

That is not all that our convention has to be, however. The GSNA believes that collectors value knowledge about the coins they collect as well as the coins themselves. To that belief, your GSNA Convention will devote time, attention, and space to numismatic specialty clubs, exhibits, and education. Specialty clubs such as the Early American Coppers Club, the Barber Collectors Society, the New Jersey Exonumia Society, the John Reich Collectors Society, and the Barber Coin Collectors' Society, have been invited to hold meetings at the GSNA Convention. These organizations enable collectors of specific numismatic items to share fellowship and information that is important to their collecting interest. Opportunities to gather as a specialty group are both welcome and rare. However, an event like the GSNA Convention provides a perfect setting for numismatic specialty groups to convene.

Collectors of beautiful and interesting coins have few opportunities to share what they collect with others who can appreciate their accomplishment. That is why an opportunity to exhibit one's coins and to view other's exhibits will be an important aspect of the GSNA Convention. The coins, paper, and exonumia that will be exhibited will bring a marvelous numismatic museum to the GSNA Convention. Visitors to the exhibit area will have an opportunity to see a variety of coins, some too rare to be seen except in exotic museum collections, and both rare and common coins exhibited with the enthusiastic love of fellow coin collectors.

Finally, in the GSNA Educational Forum will feature program by some of our hobby's premier numismatists, who will share both their knowledge and their enthusiasm with us.

Add to these ingredients the presence of hundreds of our nations dealers and collectors, and the GSNA Convention becomes much more than just a big bourse. We hope that it will be what a true coin show should be: an opportunity to share, acquire, learn, and grow in the experience of our amazing hobby of numismatics.

President's Message

Since my last President's message, we have all experienced snow, sleet, rain, bitter cold, more snow, sleet, and rain. Hopefully that is all behind us now as we look forward to warmer weather and our forthcoming 18th GSNA Convention, scheduled for July 7 through 10, 1994.

Paul Pfeil, our Convention Chairman, has informed me that all is moving along steadily towards a successful show. With still a third of a year to go, over fifty dealers have taken tables, with many more expecting to do so during the next two months.

As a special highlight to this year's GSNA Convention, I am proud to announce that we will be holding a major auction of U.S. and Foreign Coins and Paper Money in conjunction with the Convention. The auction will take place on Saturday, July 9th, at 7:00 p.m.. If you would like to have some of your numismatic items consigned to the more than four hundred lots, please contact:

A number of numismatic Specialty Clubs have indicated their desire to hold regional meetings at our Convention. These include the Early American Coppers (EAC), the New Jersey Exnumia Society, the John Reich Collectors Society (JRCS), and the Barber Coin Collectors' Society (BCCS). In addition, the General Meeting of the GSNA will occur on Saturday, July 9th at 11:30 a.m., and is open to the public. At 4:00 p.m. on that day, we will present our Educational Forum. 1st Vice President and Newsletter editor Chris Connell is arranging a program which will feature three distinguished numismatists. Larry Gentile Sr has graciously offered to preside over the Young Numismatists meetings, and the redoubtable Tom Lawless will once again serve as Master of Ceremonies at our GSNA Awards Breakfast on Sunday morning, July 10th.

So, as you can see, things are moving along well towards a successful early summer Convention.

This newsletter once again offers articles of interest on a variety of numismatic topics by members of different local clubs. Article submissions are not only welcomed but encouraged, and a special award is presented at the Convention for the best article chosen.

To date, your GSNA Board has held three meetings, with excellent results. Dues for our GSNA is still only $5.00, and we need your support to continue to provide the services that GSNA has offered in the past. Please join us to make 1994 our best year ever.

COLLECTING THE COINS OF 1894

by Arno Safran

The beautiful Barber designs continued to dominate our circulating coinage from the 5c nickel through the half-dollar in 1894. While not appreciated at the time, the six coins that represent the standard denominational year set reflect a nation moving out of its adolescence and into its full maturity, soon to be respected as a world power by the turn of the century.

Today we regard the coinage of 100 years ago with great awe, wishing we could afford pristine examples of each. What ardent collector of U.S. coinage would not dream of possessing a full Red "Indian head" cent, or a brilliant uncirculated Barber half from this year! Unfortunately, unlike the previous year of 1893, the coins of 1894 are much scarcer.

1894 was not a good year for the country or for Grover Cleveland, who was in the midst of his second non-consecutive term as President. The country was in recession. With hard times comes pressure, and Cleveland was receiving it from members of his own Democratic party; those who represented the silver interests, among them William Jennings Bryan. If this wasn't bad enough, the coal mines were hit by strikes with the resultant clashes among the strikers, scabs, and police. The Women's Suffrage movement, lead by Susan B. Anthony and Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker, was petitioning Congress for the vote, citing Wyoming and Utah and Colorado as states which had already passed laws granting universal suffrage.

Grover Cleveland

Meanwhile, a desperate group of veterans, depression victims and reformers, spanning the spectrum from political ideologues to religious zealots, were organized into a force of close to 100,000 strong. Together under the banner of "Christ's Band," and led by Jacob Coxey, they converged on Washington. There, on the steps of the Capitol, they hoped to persuade Congress and President Cleveland to "print currency to fund public projects that would provide jobs," (some thirty-nine years before any comparable "New Deal" legislation would be considered). Coxey's Army was "crushed" when its leader was ejected from the steps of the Capitol on May 1, 1894. Except for a few stragglers,

The coal miners weren't the only strikers. On July 6 1894, troops battled with unemployed laborers and Pullman workers who were striking for increased wages, lower prices, and shorter hours. The average laborer worked a 10 to 12 hour day in 1894. Eugene Debs, the now legendary president of the American Railroad Workers Union, had been arrested and was sentenced to a six month prison term in December, despite an impassioned defense by his attorney, the equally legendary Clarence Darrow.

On the lighter side of 1894 came the publication of the first color comics and the song hit "East Side, West Side, All Around the Town." Labor Day was made a national holiday, despite labor's unrest. The motion picture industry, still in its infancy, was opening Kinescope Parlors showing "peep shows and bare ankles." On the sports scene, major league Baseball made history when Link Lowe of the Boston Nationals became the first player to hit four home runs in one game, while his teammate, Hugh Duffy, hit for a .438 Batting Average, the highest ever recorded before or since. The Hershey Candy Company became the first confectioner to produce their delectable sweets in the form of a chocolate bar.

The coinage of 1894, in many ways, reflects the economic hard-times. Mintage figures would tend to support this, as the cent, nickel, and dime coinage was well below that of previous years. Only 16.7 million cents were struck in 1894, as compared with 46.6 million for the previous year. Five cent coinage was the third lowest of the Liberty head or "V" nickel type, discounting the 1912-S. Roughly 7.6 million Barber dimes were struck in all three mints in 1893, but the combined mint total for 1894 was only 2.05 million; not including the clandestine twenty-four coined at the San Francisco facility. While quarter coinage dropped only slightly from the previous year, half-dollar coinage was actually increased, as was dollar coinage; but Morgan dollars from 1894 are extremely scarce in the higher uncirculated grades and expensive in AU; possibly due to the Pittman Act of 1918 in which many dollars went into the melting pot.

The gold coinage of 1894 presents a "mixed bag." $2.50 (quarter eagles) are scarce, but $5.00 struck at the Philadelphia Mint, along with the $10.00 and $20.00 denominations are not considered difficult to acquire, and are priced generically.

For a reasonably attractive 1894 year set, the writer recommends the following grades at these suggested prices:

1c; Indian Head; MS-63 Red, if possible	$ 90
5c; Liberty Head; MS-63; Bid,	$ 150
10c; Barber dime; AU;	$ 95 to $125
25c; Barber Quarter; AU	$ 95 to $125
in MS-63,	$ 350
A "Best buy", MS-62 @	$ 275
50c, Barber Half; P, D, or S; AU-55; from	$ 285
A "Best buy"; certified MS-62	$ 475 to $550
$1.00; Morgan type; O or S; AU;	$ 95
in MS-60; 1894-P	$ 350

(compare the 1894S MS-60 with the $14.50 price of an 1885-O)

With an ounce of gold selling for around $390 as this is being written, the numismatic Premiums one must pay for the $5.00, $10.00 and $20.00 gold Liberties are a mere pittance compared to what one must remit for the Barber half. During the 1890s, wages and prices were a fraction of today's standards, and our minor coinage had tremendous purchasing power. The cent, all the way up through the half-dollar circulated heavily, which accounts for the low survival rate of high grade coins for this year in particular. All in all, however, 1894 was a fascinating year, and its coinage represents a beautiful set of mementos from a century ago.

Now retired from teaching in the music department at Trenton State College, Arno Safran is spending his time composing music and writing articles for such publications as Coin World, Coins Magazine, and the GSNA Newsletter, among others. In his spare time, Arno is President of the GSNA, President of the Ocean County Coin Club, Vice President of the New Jersey Numismatic Society, and Editor of the Trenton Coin Club Newsletter.
